WHO'S CALLING?

Public libraries, please note: The Interlibrary Loan Department of the South Carolina State Library asks that libraries calling in their requests on the In-WATS line please take special care to identify themselves. Recently, the department has received requests from several mystery libraries who have failed to identify themselves.

LEGISLATIVE INFORMATION AND DOCUMENTS

For the first time in South Carolina, instant coverage of legislative action will be available through the newly-created Legislative Information Systems of the General Assembly.

To obtain information on bills before the General Assembly or completed by it, call the toll-free number 1-800-922-1539 if you are outside the Columbia area or 758-5870 if you are in the Columbia area. The computerized system offers inquiry capabilities for the following information:

1. Title and full history of bill.
2. Status of bill.
3. Last three actions of a bill.
4. Sponsors by bill number.
5. Last action of all bills by legislative member.
6. Bill citator to Statutes and Constitution.

You can get this information even if only the subject of the bill is known.

Libraries who are not cited in the South Carolina Code of Laws to receive specific publications of the General Assembly may wish to purchase them from the printer. To ascertain if your library is entitled to receive legislative publications free of charge, and if so, which publications, see the following sections of the S. C. Code of Laws (S. C. Code, Title I, 1973 Supplement, sections 561-564; S. C. Code, Title I, 1962, sections 565-571; and S.C. Code, Title I, 1962, section 316).

The following legislative publications are listed by printer:

Michie Company, P. O. Box 57, Charlottesville, Virginia 22902

Code of Laws (1974 supplement is due within one month)

R. L. Bryan, P. O. Box 368, Columbia, South Carolina 29202

Reports and Resolutions (bound volumes of State agency annual reports) $12.00 (approximately)

Tax and postage are not included in the prices given above. It is important that bound volumes be ordered early in session.

Reports of interim or special subject committees are generally printed in the journals. For those that are not, you may wish to request them from the House of Representatives, the Senate, or from one of your legislators. These reports are difficult to identify if they are not mentioned in the daily journals, and the two chambers are not equipped to maintain a mailing list for distribution of reports not printed in the journals. It is at best a hit-or-miss proposition, but by checking the Checklist of South Carolina State Publications against the journals you should be able to determine what you are missing.

The Legislative Manual, which is generally issued in January or February, is available for $3.00 from Mrs. Sylvia Orange, Clerk, House of Representatives, P. O. Box 11867, Columbia, South Carolina 29211. The State Library's Field Service staff will distribute free copies of the 1975 Legislative Manual to their respective county libraries after it is printed.

NOTE FOR COUNTY LIBRARIES: You should receive the 1974 supplement to the South Carolina Code of Laws from the Michie Company within a month since mailing labels have already been sent to them. At that time, you may discard the 1973 supplement.

WHITE HOUSE CONFERENCE ON LIBRARIES APPROVED

On December 31, President Ford signed into law S. J. Res. 40 calling for a White House Conference on Library and Information Services no later than 1978. $3.5 million was authorized to carry out the White House Conference and to assist states with their own conferences beforehand.

HEA TITLE II GRANT APPLICATION DEADLINE EXTENDED

Closing date for grant applications under Title II of the Higher Education Act has been extended from January 29, 1975 to February 28, 1975. Applications for basic college library resources grants, for traineeships or fellowships, and for research and demonstration grants should be received by the Office of Education before 4:00 p.m. Information on these programs is available from the Office of Libraries and Learning Resources, U. CEREMONY MARKS EXPANSION OF CHARLESTON BRANCH

The completion of the renovation and expansion of the Cooper River Memorial Library Branch of the Charleston County Library was marked by a ribbon-cutting ceremony on December 19. The newly-expanded library was enlarged from 5,000 square feet to 7,850 square feet. Renovations to the building included new flooring and carpeting, lighting, furniture, and restroom facilities. A new air conditioning and heating system was also installed. The work on the building was financed by a $193,000 revenue sharing appropriation by the Charleston County Council.

STATE LIBRARY PUBLICATIONS

The South Carolina State Library's South Carolina State Program for Library Development, 1974-79 has been published and distributed to county headquarters libraries in South Carolina. The revised South Carolina State Program...1974-1979 is the second supplement to the original South Carolina Program for Library Development, 1972-1977 and should be used in conjunction with that document. The new supplement presents a review and evaluation of current programs and services as well as recommendations for future library development.

The fifth annual Checklist of South Carolina State Publications compiled and published by the South Carolina State Library was printed in January and will shortly be mailed to libraries in South Carolina. The current Checklist covers all state publications received at the State Library during the period July 1, 1973-June 30, 1974.

CHARLESTON MUSEUM LIBRARY TO BE RENOVATED

During October, the Charleston Museum employed Nancy Hackney, a graduate of the library school of the University of Kentucky, to head a three-year project to reorganize and catalog all library materials in the Museum. Ms. Hackney represents the first full-time librarian at the Museum since the 1930's.

The Junior League of Charleston assisted in the reorganization project by raising $45,000. The money will help to organize and restore a library of over 20,000 items, which includes valuable collections in the fields of natural science, decorative arts, South Caroliniana, and materials pertaining to Charleston. Up to this time, little of the material has been organized.

Due to the inadequate physical conditions at the Museum, which was originally built as a temporary structure for the Confederate Convention of 1899, many of the books and manuscripts have deteriorated. On November 5, voters in Charleston approved a $6 million bond issue to construct a modern museum building and a new site in the vicinity of George and Meeting Streets.

GROUND BREAKING FOR LEXINGTON PUBLIC LIBRARY HELD ON THANKSGIVING DAY

Ground breaking ceremonies for the Lexington Public Library were held Thanksgiving Day, November 28. The building now under construction will contain 3,500 square feet and will accommodate 15,000 volumes. The building when completed will double the space of the present library located in Lexington City Hall. Construction is expected to last six months. The firm of Drafts and Jumper of West Columbia is serving as architect on the project.

Estimated cost of the building is $90,000 plus furnishings. $60,000 in funds raised by the Lexington Public Library Association will be added to a $20,000 county appropriation to pay for the building.

The new library will eventually form part of a proposed city complex which will include city hall, and police and fire departments.

GREENWOOD COUNTY LIBRARY EXPANSION DRIVE SUCCESSFUL

A drive to raise funds for the expansion of the Greenwood County Library met with success when on December 3rd the Greenwood County Council responded to a report of the librarian that an additional $40,000 was necessary in order to receive governmental funds and proceeds from county bonds. The Council assured library Board members present at the meeting that the additional $40,000 necessary for the $500,000 project would be provided.

The County Council had originally given the impetus to the program by voting for a $300,000 bond issue. The Council voted the bond issue with the stipulation that the additional $200,000 be raised by December 1. An additional $100,000 under the Library Services and Construction Act was made available by the South Carolina State Library. The Self Foundation had pledged $25,000 on the condition that the rest of the money needed to complete the project be raised. Total cash contributions and pledges amounted to $58,279.

Clearance and work on the expansion site began in December. Earle Gaulden, of Craig and Gaulden Architects, has been chosen as architect for the project.

VILLAGE LIBRARY IN PICKENS OPENS

The new Village Branch of the Pickens County Library opened in late November. The cross-shaped library structure has approximately 5,000 square feet of space and is designed in the Williamsburg style. Construction of the library involved the efforts of many of the community's organizations and citizens. The building and lot are presently valued at over $160,000. Actual cost to Pickens residents was approximately $75,000.

PICKENS AND CHEROKEE LIBRARIES PARTICIPATE IN EXCHANGE AGREEMENT

A more varied selection of art prints and large print books has been made available to library patrons in Pickens and Cherokee counties by virtue of an exchange agreement recently agreed upon by the two libraries. Under the terms of the agreement approved by both library boards, the two libraries exchange an equal number of art prints and books. The loan period is for six months with each library bearing responsibility for exchanged materials in its possession.

ORANGEBURG COUNTY LIBRARY VICTIM OF ARSON, VANDALISM

A break-in which resulted in fire damage occurred at the Orangeburg County Library on Christmas day. Fires were set in four different areas in the library resulting in the destruction of approximately 100 books. In addition, certain areas of the library were ransacked, with papers and equipment strewn about the offices. Two men were apprehended and are being held in custody.

GREENVILLE BRANCH TO OPEN SOON

A new branch of the Greenville County Library will open early in 1975. The storefront library branch contains 3,800 square feet of floor space. Location of the branch in the Pickwick Shopping Center will permit relocation in case of diminished use of the branch. The opening of the Augusta street branch will bring the total number of branches of the Greenville County Library to eight.

PLANS FOR NANCY CARSON LIBRARY EXPANSION OK'D

The Board of Directors of the Nancy Carson Library, the North Augusta Branch of the Aiken County Library, approved plans for expansion of the library building in November. Approval of plans followed a successful fund drive conducted in the North Augusta area to raise funds for the addition of a new reference area. Plans drawn by Architect Robert M. Smith incorporated such features as access for the handicapped, book drop, and a smoke detection system.

CHEROKEE COUNTY LIBRARY BEGINS SERVICE TO HOSPITAL PATIENTS

Volunteers from the Friends of the Cherokee County Library began serving patients of the Cherokee County Memorial Hospital on November 18. Twice a week, volunteers are pushing a cart of paperback books around the hospital to be circulated to patients and persons sitting with them. Book return boxes have been placed on each hospital floor or the patients have the option of returning them to the volunteers or to the library directly. Library cards and overdue funds are dispensed with for this service.

EFFORTS TO RESTORE LOWRYS LIBRARY

The Thursday Afternoon Club of Lowrys has undertaken a project to restore an early circulating library in South Carolina and a fore-runner of the bookmobile program. Members are seeking funds and materials to furnish and restore the "Free Public Library of South Carolina at Lowryville" as it appeared in the past. It will serve as a museum and point of historical interest in Chester County. The one-room frame building is gradually being renovated by members of the club.

The library originated in 1904 with a donation by Dr. Dellano Fitzgerald of Baltimore. Dr. Fitzgerald donated a collection of some 1,400 books and magazines and absorbed the cost of establishing and operating the library. To make the books more widely available, Dr. Fitzgerald had 20 strong book cabinets designed and constructed to hold a few dozen books each. The cases were then distributed by horse-drawn buggy to various locations in Chester and York counties on a rotating basis. About 10 of the book cabinets are known to be in existence today.

The Greenville County Library, in cooperation with Furman University, will present a workshop on "Books for Children" over a six-week period at the Greenville County Library.

FILM NEWS

Plans for film series at various public libraries throughout the state are beginning to take shape. Mrs. Maurine Lackey, Librarian of the Aiken County Library, intends to begin the "Civilization" series in mid-March. On January 16, Pickens County Library Director James Swan and his assistant Mrs. Sarah Lander, visited the State Library to discuss and to select films for their program which will soon be underway. The Charleston County Library is planning a Saturday afternoon film series whose theme will concern various ethnic groups.

The 16mm take-up reels have arrived and will be distributed at the preview sessions and by the staff on field visits.

As usual, a great many films were previewed in January. Among the new films purchased for the State Library film collection are:

The consumer gain. 17 min., color. Reviews advertising techniques that do not give the consumer an objective view of his own needs or the real price or quality of the product.

Eye to eye with wild animals. 21 min., color. Animals are shown being experimentally raised by foster-parents and humans at the Budapest Zoo.

Foxfire. 21 min., color. Traces development of the now famous Rabun Gap, Georgia high school publication.

Gypsies. 30 min., B/W. A suppressed group of people migrating in poverty and rejection through Eastern Europe. Not the usual Western idea of gypsies.

Sylvia, Fran and Joy. 25 min., B/W. Three young women voice their opinions about the role of wife/mother/housekeeper. Stimulating discussion about the role of women in society.

Women's rights in the United States - an informal history. 27 min., color. A survey of the struggle for women's rights in the United States, from pioneer days through the winning of the vote.

COLONIAL PAPERS ACQUIRED BY USC

The South Caroliniana Library and its patron organization, the University of South Caroliniana Society, recently purchased an extensive collection of papers of James Glen, colonial governor of South Carolina from 1738-1756. The collection was acquired at a London auction of Sotheby and Company. The Glen collection contains about 100 items including autographed manuscripts, official documents, and letters to Glen. The papers relate to the colonial governor's dealings with the Cherokee Indians, his relations with the Assembly and with South Carolina personalities.

LIBRARIES PARTICIPATE IN CHRISTMAS FESTIVITIES

Two public libraries in the state got a good deal of public exposure by participating in Christmas parades in their areas.

The Richland County Public Library sponsored a float in the annual Christmas parade held in Columbia. "The Christmas Story" was the theme of the float in the parade, featuring Susan Ponsard of the library staff and her family reading the story of Christmas in front of a Christmas tree.

The Cherokee County Library's bookmobile entered Gaffney's annual Christmas parade and came out with the first place award in the religious and non-profit category. The bookmobile was decorated with a lighted Christmas tree, Santa Claus, and characters from children's literature.

Also, the Children's Room of the Greenville County Library and the Greenville Civic Ballet co-sponsored a special Christmas program for school-age children December 6. Members of the ballet troupe performed excerpts from "The Nutcracker" and the Children's Librarian related the story of the Nutcracker.

NORTH GREENVILLE COLLEGE LIBRARY OPENS

During November, students, faculty, and administration members of North Greenville College formed a "book brigade" to transport books into the new Averyt Learning Center.

The new learning center is a three-level structure, which currently houses 38,000 volumes and has a potential capacity of 70,000. The main floor includes study carrels, a listening and language lab, faculty seminar room, art gallery, historical conference room, and exterior balconies for reading.

Library stacks, along with the card catalog, reference area, work room and microfilm room are located on the second floor. The lower half-story includes space for an audio-visual office, art studio, dark room, and multi-purpose auditorium.

The Averyt Center, named in honor of Edwin E. Averyt of Columbia, was officially dedicated on North Greenville Founder's Day, January 16, at Turner Auditorium.

The Orangeburg County Library offers the following bound volumes of periodicals to any South Carolina library which can use them. Any libraries interested in obtaining these volumes should contact: Beverly Ulmer, Orangeburg County Librarian.

SECOND PHASE OF FRANCIS MARION COLLEGE LIBRARY BEGUN

Francis Marion College has engaged Florence architect Jack Dowis to plan Phase II of the James A. Rogers Library.

The second stage of the plan calls for the conversion of the second floor of the library building, previously used for classrooms, to total library use. An interior stairway will be constructed, along with construction of a closed area for Special Collections and Archives. Provision will also be made for group study rooms and individual closed carrels.

The expansion will increase the capacity of the library to 150,000 volumes and the seating capacity to 500.

OFFICE OF EDUCATION BASIC GRANT APPLICATIONS TO BE MAILED TO LIBRARIES

The Office of Education has notified the South Carolina State Library that it will be mailing a packet of display materials concerning basic educational grants to public libraries in South Carolina during February. Application grants for aid for postsecondary education for the academic year 1975-76 will be included in the packet along with a poster, a fact sheet describing student aid programs sponsored by the Office of Education and a re-order card for requesting additional materials.

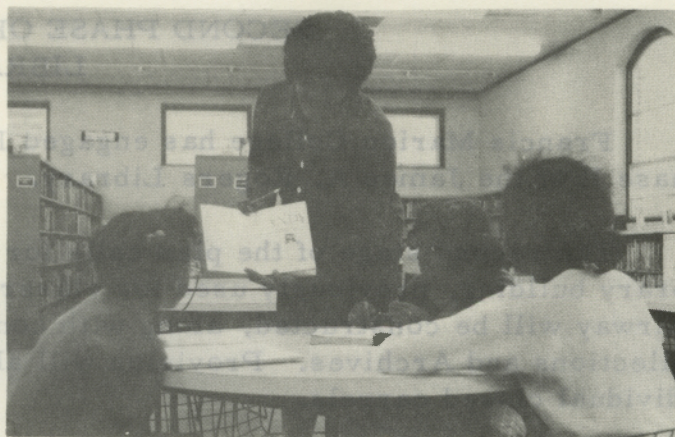

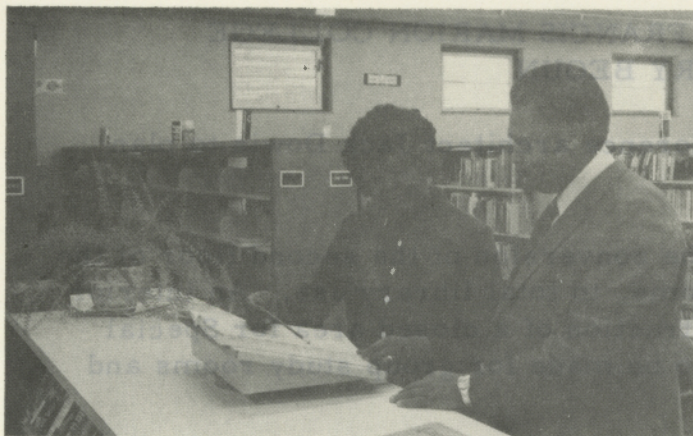

Last year, Basic Grant application forms were made available to students during the summer months at public libraries throughout South Carolina.

NETWORK INSTITUTE TO BE HELD IN NEW ORLEANS

An institute on library networking entitled "Networks and Networking II; the Present and Potential" will be held at the Braniff Hotel in New Orleans, February 27-28, 1975. The institute, sponsored by the Information Science and Automation Division of ALA and the Southeastern Library Network (SOLINET), is the second on the topic of networking and will be an extension of the first institute held in New Orleans a year ago. A new feature of this institute will be vendor's exhibits.

Registration for the institute will be $75 for ALA members and staff members of all SOLINET institutions, $90 to non-members and $10 to library science students. For registration blanks and hotel reservation information, contact: Donald P. Hammer, ISAD, American Library Association, 50 East Huron Street, Chicago, Illinois 60611.

The Richland County Public Library is cooperating with the Citizens Education Center by registering people for adult education courses offered by the Center. Books on the subjects offered are being displayed in the main lobby of the library.

MRS. REBECCA MANIGAULT STEPNEY

Featured this month is Mrs. Rebecca Manigault Stepney, who is celebrating her 10th year as a branch librarian for the Charleston County Library. She operates the John L. Dart Branch at 1067 King Street in Charleston. A Charleston native, Mrs. Stepney is a graduate of Benedict College, and earned her master's degree in Library Science at Atlanta University.

Along with its regular circulating and reference collection, the John L. Dart Branch has a special collection of books by and about Negroes, some of which are out-of-print. The collection started with the personal library of the Rev. John L. Dart for whom the library was named.

Among Mrs. Stepney's regular duties are two very interesting ones. The library branch supports library services at a Neighborhood House, a building located in a disadvantaged neighborhood. The Neighborhood House has a small permanent book collection that is available on a regularly scheduled basis. Another recent extension of library services is the Food Stamp Center. Mrs. Stepney spends three mornings a month promoting library services to those waiting for food stamp authorization.

A member of both the Southeastern and South Carolina library associations, Mrs. Stepney is married and has a five-year old son. She is a member of St. Luke R.E. Church, and her hobbies are sewing and cooking.
